Imported Costumes An Event

ARCHITECTURAL art is frozen music. Dressmaking art is the poetry of textiles—with a severe mercantile side. Wanamaker collections of the graces of costumes are made in the capitals where minds are brightest, eyes are quickest, expenditure freest, ambition greatest, fashion supremest. Prudence in buying is thrown to the winds-a fig for cost, however great.

Thus the shows come with the procession of the seasons; thus, and 'twas just the other day, came the most imperial show of the world's latest in elegant dress for women. But they are shown only once. The sea may engulf, or fire consumebetter either than a repetition at Wanamaker's.

Therefore, the sword that divides falls upon the prices, and all the imported costumes, the poems of Corne, Worth, Doucet, Paquin, Sara Mayer and the Callot Soeurs; the dreams of the dressmakers to royalty at the imperial courts of Germany and Austria; go at just one-half of Saturday's Paris holds no costumes that are richer, fresher or more original. Here is one from Worth that goes from $600 to $300-cost $550 in Paris-another from Corne that drops from $250 to $125. Another from Drecol that was $425, but is $212.50.

GRAND ARMY BUGLE NOTES.

Veterans of the war of 1861-'65 all over the country are offering their services to the Government in the present emergency. Many of the old soldiers of the War for the Union retain the fighting qualities they displayed nearly forty years ago, and are anxious to join in expelling the Spanish from Cuba. One of these is Capitan Joseph H. Barker, of the old "Dandy Fifth," Assistant State Factory Inspector, who proposes to organize a light battery of artillery to fight Spain's minions. Captain Barker has sent this letter to Governor

ACQUITTED OF THE CHARGE OF KILLING HI GRANDMOTHER.

Camden, N. J., May 1.-Eli Shaw, the young man of this city indicted for the murder of his mother. Mrs. Sarah Shaw, and for the murder of his grandmother, Mrs. Emma Zane, is nearer freedom a than he has been since he was first arrested. He has been on trial for a week before Justice Garrison on the indictment charging him with the killing of his grandmother. The jury retired at 3 o'cleck Friday afternoon, and when the court opened yesterday morning a verdict of not guilty was pre-their sympathy was entirely with him. His sweetheart, Maybelle Nellson, and her mother were close by when the verdict was announced, and both were overjoyed.

The verdict means much to Shaw, for the probabilities are that the indictment against him fog the killing of his mother will not be brought to trial. The evidence was the same in both cases.

There was such a demonstration in the courtroom when the verdict declaring Shaw not guilty was given that Judge Garrison for a time could not restore order. Finally he lost patience and decided to make an example. He ordered two of the spectators placed under arrest, and then fined each file for contempt of court.
